INFORMED CONSENT FOR MENTAL HEALTH TREATMENT

Therapy is a relationship that works in part because of clearly defined rights and responsibilities held by each person. This frame helps to create the safety to take risks and the support to become empowered to change. As a client in psychotherapy, you have certain rights that are important for you to know about because this is your therapy, whose goal is your well-being. There are also certain limitations to those rights that you should be aware of. As therapists, we have corresponding responsibilities to you.

My Responsibilities to You as Your Therapist

I. Confidentiality

With only a few specific exceptions outlined below, you have the absolute right to the confidentiality of your therapy. We cannot and will not tell anyone else what you have told me, or even that you are in therapy with me without your prior written permission. Under the provisions of the Health Care Information Act of 1992, we may legally speak to another health care provider or a member of your family about you without your prior consent, but we will not do so unless the situation is an emergency. We will always act to protect your privacy even if you do release me in writing to share information about you. You may direct me to share information with whomever you chose, and you can change your mind and revoke that permission at any time. You may request anyone you wish to attend a therapy session with you.

If you elect to communicate with me electronically at some point in our work together, please be aware that these services are not completely confidential. All electronic records are retained in the logs of your or my internet service or cellular provider. While under normal circumstances no one looks at these logs, they are, in theory, available to be read by the system administrator(s) of the internet service or cellular provider.

Correspondence we receive from you, and any responses that I send to you, may be printed out and kept in your treatment record.

The following are legal exceptions to your right to confidentiality. We will attempt to inform you of any time when we think we will have to put these into effect.

1. If supervision occurs, your confidential information may be shared.
2. If we have concerns about child and/or elder abuse or neglect.
3. If we are concerned you may harm yourself or someone else.
4. Under court order.

II. Other Rights

We are always willing to discuss how and why we've decided to do what we do, and to look at alternatives that might work better. You can feel free to ask me to try something that you think will be helpful. You can ask me about my training for working with your concerns and can request that I refer you to someone else if you decide I'm not the right therapist for you. You are free to leave therapy at any time.

III. Your Responsibilities as a Therapy Client

You are responsible for coming to your session on time and at the time we have scheduled. If you are late, we will end on time and not run over into the next person's session. If you miss a session without canceling, or cancel with less than twenty-four hours' notice, you must pay for that session at our next regularly scheduled meeting. The answering machine has a time and date stamp which will keep track of the time that you called me to cancel. We cannot bill these sessions to your insurance. The only exception to this rule about cancellation is if you would endanger yourself by attempting to come (for instance, driving on icy roads), or if you or someone whose caregiver you are has fallen ill suddenly. If you no-show for two sessions in a row and do not respond to my attempts to reschedule, I will assume that you have dropped out of therapy and will make the space available to another individual.

You are responsible for paying for your session weekly unless we have made other firm arrangements in advance. Co-pays are due at the time of the appointment.

Acknowledgement of Insurance Processing

In order to process claims and receive payment from insurance carriers, it is helpful for each client to be aware of the certain processes mental health services require. Most insurance plans require prior authorization for a service such as therapy. Please contact your carrier by calling the customer help line located on the back of your card to ensure that your plan does not require prior authorization or a referral from your primary care physician. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact our billing department.

Life Resources, LLC and The Insight Program, PC will complete and mail an insurance claim of your behalf. However, you are responsible for all pre-authorization requirements, insurance claim follow up, and all charges not covered by your insurance. Life Resources, LLC and The Insight Program, PC reserves the right to charge the patient the full amount of the visit if there is no response from the insurance company within 45 days.

Please be aware that all clients that have co-pays or co-insurances must pay them at the time of service. If you are unable to make the payment at that time, a statement will be mailed to you and payable within 10 days of receipt. If necessary, a payment plan can be made with our billing department. In the event that we have not received payment within 90 days of service, a collection process will commence. Please keep our office up-to-date with any change of address to avoid any complications with statements.
